

Press Release

Interturbine-MES GmbH continues the business operations of Rubach-ETS GmbH & Co. KG

Kaltenkirchen / Germany, October 2010

With effect from 01 October 2010 Interturbine-MES GmbH in Kaltenkirchen has taken over the business activities of the former Rubach-ETS GmbH & Co. KG in Quickborn.

By integrating the know-how and experience of about 20 employees including the entire management team of Rubach-ETS into the Interturbine-MES GmbH, a new center of excellence for the development of solutions and products for the control and distribution of electrical energy has been created.

The business segments of the two formerly independent companies complement each other perfectly: Interturbine-MES was and is specialized in developing individual and complex control systems and power distribution systems, while Rubach-ETS brings in a profound knowledge, expertise and contacts in the field of series production / contract manufacturing for customers in mechanical and plant engineering.

Thus the “new” Interturbine-MES GmbH is an ideal partner for both series manufacturing and individual engineering.

The product and service spectrum ranges from concept development and project planning to assembly and installation of simple and complex control units and energy distribution systems.

Maintenance, retrofit and modification concepts for the own and third party products, a worldwide supply of components and spare parts as well as a 24/7 emergency service complete Interturbine-MES' scope of services.

Interturbine-MES benefits from the worldwide distribution and supply network of the Interturbine Group of Companies. Headquartered in Kaltenkirchen, the Interturbine Group has specialized in high-tech and aerospace industries and provides its clients with a wide range of products and services. Interturbine is truly a ONE STOP SOURCE, with a growing workforce that is currently over 460 employees.
